

Washington, D.C. - U.S. Congressman Mike Pence released the following statement today regarding his vote against raising the debt ceiling:

"The Budget Control Act was a modest first step toward restoring fiscal discipline; however, today's vote shows that it did not go nearly far enough. Washington, D.C. is not just broke, it's broken, and I urge my colleagues and the President to come together to find common sense solutions to put our fiscal house in order."
